HONOKONG, JUNE 12TH, 1889. FRANCIS, Q.C., on the Smitary Board. As Why does not Mr. Francis, put the gist of to Mr. Francis's own conduct as a member his letter in the form of a resolution and have of that body, the learned gentleman evident. the whole question thoroughly debated by ly has the approval of his own conscience, the Sanitary Board itself, repeating the prohis letter we find much more to agree than accomplished? Reform was debated in the the proposed capital. to disagree with, and we can only regret House of Commons over and over again that his lack of moderation and fairness before the Reform Bill was finally passed. should nullify, to so large an extent, the great and wholesome influence he otherwise wield for the furtherance of popular rights and free government. In his letter published yesterday be commences by pronouncing the Sanitary Board " a most miserable failure" and is " sorry to have to add that it was intended by the Government from the first day of its existence that it should not turn out a success. Is this fair, or in accordance with fact ? The Government often reminds us of a donkey that won't go without a great deal of urging, but we do not think black duplicity is one of its leading characteristics It was not until after long agitation that the Government wasinduced to make such a concession of the principle of representative government as is involved in the inclusion of two elected representatives of the ratepayers on up. the Sanitary Board, but when at length the concession was made, we believe it was with the honest desire and in the honest belief that it would prove a benefit to the Colony. The reconstituted Sanitary Board was certainly a step in advance of what had existed before. Until within recent years there had been no Sanitary authority at all except-the Government-itself. Then the first ters despatched from Hongkong on the 10th Sanitary Board was constituted, a body with no legal status, holding its meetings in privete, and possessing no real authority, but which was nevertheless of some use as a consultative body. The old Sanitary Board, or the unofficial members of it, were naturally enough dissatisfied with the constitution the Government the importance of introducing the elective element and of the meetings | baving left for parts unknown, and taken with being held with open doors. The name recommended, as stated by the Hon. A. P. MACEWEN in the Legislative Council, was the "Municipal Sanitary-Board," and it was has now been re-opened. The Rotisserie has thoroughly understood on the unofficial side been decorated throughout in a tasteful manner. that the ultimate goal-was-to-be a Munici- tendence of Mr. W. S. Martan of the Hall & pal Council. The Government, however, Holts Company. was not willing to concede everything at forward, and amongst other things it nonneing the death on the 31st. May of M. established the Sanitary Board and provided who was proceeding home by the M. M. steamer elected by the ratepayers. Mr. Francis says :- "Give it rope enor h and it will hang itself was the principle on which. executed, cut down; and buried out of eight we do not, that' that was the purpose for which, it was given. It is true the Board has very little freedom of action. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been and the Cape, Egypt, Malta, and Gibralian. jects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are for students of a most instructive nature. Both alleged losses of such covers. the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vest economy of space, achieving a clearness not proviously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherte pub-For practical purposes the arrangement o the work is so complete, that a reference to its N WEDNESDAY, the Brd day of July, pages enables a person who understands linglish 1889, at 4 P.M., the Company's Steamship to communicate effectively with natives who themselves it explains subjects fully with which Shipping Orders will be granted till 10 a M., very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted." in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

Of course there are differences in types of beauty, and she was not of the type that comnended itself to Philip-so he thought. She had dark hair and a transparent olive complexion. Possibly a touch of dark blood in her, mused Philip, and he said to hintrelf "I will take the first opportunity to look at her mails." Her features were finely modelled, with firmmess of outting that showed she was no longer in her teens, andeveloped. The flexible tran-

"Yes," said Philip, "she is handsome, but she belongs to that period of life which may be twenty four or Changsha thirty-four. She has got out of her teenhood, that is clear." He looked at Salome. If Salome was his ideal, nothing could be more different than her type from the type of Miss Durham. There was a childlike Fatshan simplicity in Salome, an ignorance of the world Frejr which would make of her a child to grey hairs; Fushun and this strange lady had clearly none of this Gaelie simplicity and ignorance; she knew a great deal Gen. tunately Miss Durham was the last to arrive, so there was no difficulty about requesting her to take a place elsewhere. When she enfered the salle-a-manger at the usual hour every seat was occupied at the table to which for some littlewhile she had been admitted. She saw at a glance that her place was taken, and she went without demur, or a look of disappointment, to the long table. She had sufficient tact to perceive that Philip disliked her, and she had no intention of pressing her society on those who did not desire it. So far from seeming vexed, a slight contemptuous smile, like the flicker of summer lightning, played about her lips. She caught Salome's eye, full of appeal and apology, and returned it with a good-natured nod. "A trifle such as this," said the nod, "will not give me offence." Mrs. Sidebottom sat beside Philip and plied him with questions relative to the intentions of Uncle Jeremiah-questions which he was unable to answer, but she attributed his evasive replies to unwillingness to speak, and pressed him the more urgently. The captain was attentive to Janet, who had recovered her spirits, laughed and twinkled, and without intentionally coquetting did coquette with him. Janet became dull in female society, but that of men acted as a tonic upon her; it was like Parrish's Chemical Food to a bloodless girl; it brisked her up, gave colour to her cheek, and set her tongue wagging.
